Society in Wyoming.

Cummins Cuy is sill a crude maropolis, Seciety has not yet arrived at the white vest and lawn sociable period there. There is nothing to hamper any one or throw a tiresome restraint around him. You walk up and down the streets of Guaison without feeling that the vigilant eye of the policeman is upon you, and when you register at the leading hotel the proprietor don't ask how much bacases you.

Scanned, dated October 8', 1878 which deed of trust was duly recorded in the Custom House at Georgetown, D. C., in liber M B No. 1, folios 167 and 168, on the 1st day of November, 1878, and which said deed of trust was duly resigned to me by the said Arsemus Schofield on the 14th day of Pebruary, 1880, which said assignment was always and down the custom House at the proprietor don't ask how much bacases you. proprietor don't ask how much baggage you have or it sist upon it that your value ought to be blown up with a quill to give it a robust ap

Speaking of this hotel, however, bridge to my mind a little incident which really belongs in here. There are two ladies at this place, the only ones in the city limits, if my memory serves me. One of these ladies owes a lot of poles or house logs which were at the time of which I speak on the dump, as it were, ready to be used in the construction of a new cabin. It seems that some of the male citizens of the corp ration, without the fear of God or the Common Council of Cummins City, had been as propriating these logs from time to time until out of a good, fair assortment there remained only a dijected little pile of onls. The owner had watched with great appoyance the gradual disappearance of her property from day to day, and it made her lose faith in the final redemption of all mankind. She became cyui-

One day, however, after things had preced ed about far enough, she went to her truck. and taking out the large size pavy revolver, the kind that plows up the vitals so successfully and sends so many Western men to their long home, she went out to where a group of men had scattered themselves out around the camp to smoke. She wasn't a large woman, at all, but these men respected her. Though they were only rough miners there in the wilderness they recognized that she was a woman, and they re cognized it almost at a glance, too. There she was alone among a wild group of men in the mountains, far from the protecting arm of the law and softening influences of metropolitan life, and yet the common feeling of gallantry implanted in the masculine breast was there. She indicated with the motion of her revolver that she desired to call the meeting to order. -There seemed to be a general anxiety on the part of every man present to come to order as number of those articles, now invisible to the naked eye, were placed at a certain point or a certain amount of kopecks placed on file with the chairman of the meeting within a specified time that perdition would be popping on Main street in about two and one half ticks of the chronometer. There didu't seem to be any desire on the part of the meeting to amend the motion or lay it on the table. Although it was arbitrary and soon as circumstances would permit. Then she made a short speech relative to the matter of house logs, and suggested that unless a certain imperative, and although an opportunity was given for a free expression of opinion, there didn't seem to be sny desire to take advantage of it. A committee of three was appointed to carry out the suggestions of the chair, and in about half an hour the house logs and kopecks having been placed on deposit at the places designated, the meeting broke up, suiject to the call of the chairman. It was not a very long session, but it was very harmonious—very : armonious and very orderly. There was no calling for the previous question or rising to a point of order. The pale faced men who composed the convention did not look to the cisual observer as though they had come there to raise points for debate over parliamentary practice. They kept their eye on the speaker's desk and didn't interrupt each other or struggle to see who could get the floor. It is worderfal this inherent strength of weakness as I might say which enables a woman amid a throng of rickless men to command their respect and obedience sometimes where main strength and awkwardness would not avail. - Denver Tribune. USE OF THE POTATO. - In France ferina is argely used for culinary purposes. The famed gravies, sauces and soups of France are largely indebted for their excellence to that source, and its bread and pastry equally so, while a great deal of the so-called cogoac, imported from France is the product of the potato. "Settin bran dy," well known in commerce, is largely im ported into England, and is sent from thence to many of her foreign possessions as the produc: of the grape, and is placed on many a table of England as the same, while the fair ladies of our country perfume themselves with the spirit of potato under the designation of eau de Co logue. But there are other uses which this esculent is turned to abroad. After extracting the farina the pulp is manufactured into orna mental articles, such as picture frames, souff boxes and several descriptions of toys, and the water that runs from it to the process of manufacture is a most valuable scourer.
